

Eco-Grief: Finding Hope Across Generations

A transformative webinar exploring a spiritual approach to dealing with eco-grief and intergenerational action for our common home.

Victoria Looz

Victoria Looz, eco-theologian and author of Church of the Wild: How Nature Invites Us into the Sacred, is the founder of the Wild Church Network. Drawing on her experience as a pastor and environmental advocate, Victoria addresses eco-grief with faith, offering hope and healing amid environmental challenges.

Kayla Jacobs

Kayla Jacobs, Program Manager at Catholic Climate Covenant, is a dynamic speaker and advocate for Pope Francis' encyclical, Laudato Si', inspiring bold action for climate justice. She brings expertise in advocacy, youth engagement, and faith-based solutions to the ecological challenges we face.

Gabriela Martinez

Gabriela Martinez, former Director of Campaigns with the Franciscan Action Network, works to amplify the voices of young people in advocating for ecological sustainability and social justice. Gabriela brings a fresh and compelling perspective to the conversation on eco-grief and intergenerational action.

Webinar date: Thursday, March 27
6:30-8:00 pm CST

Suggested donation: $15. Contributions help cover speaker fees and platform costs while furthering our mission to inspire faith-filled action for eco-justice.
